The Presidents Report

I would like to thank the Committee for their hard work, and attendance at meetings.

Once again I thank John Balfour for his tireless work as secretary, and as assistant treasurer.

There have been some significant milestones this year.

1. The web page, and the significant impact that it has had on the members in the wider community. Well done to Pat Sengos and his team.

2. Attendance at the ANZAC Day parade, and the RFD parade was pleasing.

3. The 50th Anniversary of DEE WHY Depot and the Regiment's 90th Birthday.

4. The unveiling of the Association Paver at North Fort. (Thanks to all those who got behind this project financially, and all members for their financial and moral support)

5. The Regiment shooting visit was also held on the 14th October at Singleton. Thanks to a total fire ban the guns could not fire, but those who attended had a wonderful time looking over the modern equipment the Regiment currently uses and talking to the diggers who were deployed in a fire support base scenario.

I would like to thank the CO LT COL Taggart and his diggers for the excellent display and BBQ they put on for the Association. Well done.

It is time that we seek another project, as we have currently achieved all of our stated objectives.

We also endeavoured to update the Association Constitution, but due to an admin oversight in which the updated constitution was to be sent out to all members prior to the AGM, members were not fully aware of the rationale. I was of the opinion that this had been sent.

Accordingly the Committee has declared that motion void. The constitution as it was is extant. The new document detailing the minor manuscript amendments will be sent in due course, and the matter dealt with as a committee motion at the next AGM.

I am happy to discuss this with any member who would like further clarification. I can assure you that the intent of the constitution was at no time changed.

It is my suggestion that we have a soldier representative on the committee, in order to access the ideas of the younger and newer members of the Regiment. We already have a CO's representative. This will be a matter for the new committee.

It is time, as we move forward for members to step up and take responsibility for the running of the association.

The addition of historical matter on the banner has been researched, and is now ready for members to assess, and vote. Regrettably at the General Meeting this was rejected and other options are being assessed. Thanks to Jim Nash and his wife for the hard work and thanks to Danny Toplis and Laurie Hindmarsh for historical and technical advice.

The Annual Reunion is on the 17th November at the North Sydney Club 88 Berry Street. This venue has been selected for its proximity to transport.

I have been in contact with the new Colonel Commandant Eastern Region, COL Allan Piercy, who wishes us well and will join us as our guest at the reunion.

We will continue our association with the RAA, North Fort, and the Unit. The CO has continued his most positive approach to the association.

I look forward to seeing you all at North Sydney on the 17th November.

Best wishes,

UBIQUE

From The Colonel's Dugout

This year the Regiment celebrated its 90th anniversary with a Birthday cocktail party at North Head on Saturday, 11th March 2006. Over 100 members and guests including Brigadier Iain Spence, Commander 8th Brigade and Colonel Don Tait, our Colonel Commandant for Eastern Region were entertained by the band of the 23rd Field Regiment and staff from the Royal Australian Artillery National Museum. The highlights for the evening included the dedication of the Association's, 7th Field Regiment paver in the Memorial Walk and the cutting of the birthday cake by the Commanding Officer and youngest soldier, Gunner Hubbard-Potter of the 113th Field Battery.

The heritage of the Regiment is held in pride of place and it is fitting this year to remember the origins of the Regiment. The 7th Field Artillery Brigade was formed on the 17th March 1916 in Marrickville. The Brigade sailed to England in July 1916 and first went into action on the 17th January 1917 at Armentieres. The Brigade remained in action continuously for the remainder of World War One before being removed from the order of battle. The Brigade was reformed in 1921, was redesignated 7th Field Regiment and served in World War Two and later disbanded again. The Regiment was re-raised in 1948 and has served continuously to this day.

This year the Regimental command group consisted of:

Lieutenant Colonel Craig Taggart;
Commanding Officer;

Major Grant Palmer ;
Second in Command (posted out in June 2006);

Major David Ellson;
Executive Officer and Battery Commander;

Major Alain Dunand;
Battery Commander 28th Field Battery;

Major Dhugald See;
Battery Commander 113th Field Battery;

Captain Andrew White;
Adjutant; and

Warrant Officer Class One Brett Franklin;
Regimental Sergeant Major.

The Regiment also welcomed back some old hands – Captain Simon Worboys and Warrant Officer Class Two Grant Nicholls.

Initially, training was focused on induction and mandatory training, conferences, orders groups, officer training and the annual RAA Safety course. Throughout my tenure of command my intent has always been to re-establish and maintain two separate firing units based on each of 28th and 113th Field Batterys. I am most pleased to report that my intent was met on the firing exercise conducted at Singleton during the period 17th–19th March 2006. It was most fitting that this success was to occur on our 90th Anniversary. Both gun batterys deployed as two separate (albeit small) firing units each with their own command posts, safety parties and Joint Offensive Support Teams. The importance of every individual soldier cannot be understated as any one person can be the difference between deploying one or two fire units. This achievement was brought about by a continuous effort from past and current members who have assisted to rebuild the Regiment over the last two years. And to prove that it wasn't a fluke, the Regiment backed up with two fire units for the following exercise in May 2006.

This year the Regiment was let off the ceremonial responsibilities for the Australia Day and Queen's Birthday salutes. We made up for this by providing the lead support on two occasions to Joint Tactical Air Control (JTAC) training over two separate weeks at Singleton. This is an enormous effort for a part time organisation, requiring a complete three gun fire unit with command and observation posts for one week at a time. Needless to say it was not achieved without some grief and cooperation with 23rd Field Regiment and A Field battery.

The big training event for the year was the conduct of ten days of continuous artillery training at Singleton in July on Exercise YPRES. The aim of this training was to develop individual and detachment, collective fire support and all arms defence skills by day and night. All elements of the Regiment were exercised including the Forward Echelon. Training included operating from a fire support base, practising pistol gun techniques, convoy drills and fire planning.

Throughout the year we conducted a number of routine maintenance weekends, attended both the Sydney and Newcastle Gunner Dinners, supported ANZAC Day, and conducted a small arms training weekend at Singleton. Officer and SNCO training was conducted at RAAF Williamtown and both Colonel Don Tait and Captain Andrew White were called upon to discuss their personal experiences on operations and identify lessons that are relevant to the Regiment in 2006. The fiftieth anniversary of the Dee Why depot was celebrated with an open day on the 24th June 2006. It was a great day and fantastic to see how the Dee Why depot and batteries have evolved over the last fifty years.

In June, we held the inaugural MESSINES Dinner as a combined activity between the Officers and Sergeants Mess. The Battle of MESSINES occurred in June 1917 and was the first occasion whereby the 7th Field Artillery Brigade fired in direct support of its parent division, the 3rd Division (AIF). The Regiment has adopted MESSINES as a regimental tradition and it will be a standing fixture on future training and mess calendars.

The second half of the year remained as hectic as the first half. Maintenance was always on the agenda and two more firing exercises were conducted including one in October coinciding with the Association's visit to the Regiment in the field and the final exercise for 2006 in November. The Regiment plans to wrap up the year with the annual all ranks dinner at Dee Why followed by attendance at the annual RAA Church Parade at the Garrison Church in The Rocks.

My time as commanding officer is drawing nigh and I will soon be handing over command to Lieutenant Colonel Max Shaday. I have thoroughly enjoyed the privilege of commanding the 7th Field Regiment and would like to thank each and every member of the Regiment and the Association for their support of my command and particularly their support to the Regiment.

Did You Know

All copies of the Regiments WW I War diaries and battle maps are held on microfilm/fiche in the Australian War Memorial, and if visiting are easily accessible in their downstairs research room.

Likewise personnel service records are held by the National Archives (as well as other interesting articles), of which you can request a photocopy for a fee or they will scan and make a digital copy which will be accessible on the net, this usual takes 6-8 weeks. You may be lucky and find information already scanned.

Both departments have very good databases that can be researched on the net.

Identity Discs (Dog Tags)

Post September 1916
No. 1 and No. 2 disc.

It was not until the Boer War of 1899 - 1902 that British soldiers started wearing regulation methods of personal identity and these were in the form of strips of tape.

The strips were supposedly carried in tunic pockets; however, it seemed that soldiers being soldiers, the strips could end up being placed anywhere and more often than not, a detailed search had to be conducted of the seriously wounded and dead to locate them.

In 1906, each soldier was issued with a tin disc and given specific orders that it was to be worn around the neck.

By the Great War, soldiers were issued with two discs, one was round and coloured red, while the other was octagonal and coloured green.

The discs were stamped with the soldier's name, religion and unit. The aim of the two colours was that the red tag was removed and attached to a small bag, carried by burial parties, containing the soldier's personal belongings.

The tag's dual purpose was to name the owner of the contents and assist in establishing a record of those killed. The green tag remained with the body for temporary burial, making the corpse identifiable when exhumed for proper burial later. (Legend has it that the two colours were to assist soldiers in remembering which tag went where: red, the colour of blood, was taken away indicating the owner was dead; while green, the colour of grass, was kept with the body).

Today, the Australian Army's Personal Identification Tags are referred to as Number 1 Tag (the octagonal shaped disc) and Number 2 Tag (the circular disc). They are embossed with the title AUST, the soldier's regimental number, initials and name, religion and blood group.

The current Australian Army Standing Orders for Dress states: "Identification discs (dog tags) are to be worn when engaged in field training or operations, duty travel in service aircraft or posted overseas. They are to be worn on the issued chain only".

LFX Invite to Singleton Range

Various members of Association (including the Gunners from the Newcastle Assoc) took up the CO's kind offer to come see the guns fire on Saturday 14 October, only one small problem there was a total fire ban in place.

However that did not stop us dreaming of a good wiff of the cordite smoke to bring back those fond memories or the nightmares of your No 1 or Seco.

101 Rounds Fire for Effect

On Thursday 16 August 1945 a victory salute of one hundred and one guns was fired from Sydney's Domain to celebrate the end of war in the Pacific. It is the only time that such a salute has ever been made in Australia's military history. It was fired by the 14th AIF Field Regiment, using the same Australian-made twenty-five-pounder guns they had used, at a critical point in the war to blast the Japanese off Ioribaiwa Ridge, just 40 miles from Port Moresby up on the Kokoda Track, in the treacherous Owen-Stanley Ranges.

New Members

The Association welcomes on board the following new members. We hope to see you at the Annual Reunion in November.

Gunner Poems

A Toast to the Guns
By them we live,
For them we would die.
Whatever the Mission,
We'll give it a try.
We'll serve them with Honour
For they are the ones;
That make us Artillerymen,
So here's to the Guns:
TO THE GUNS!!

Unknown

You can't describe the moral lift,
when in the fight your spirits weary
hears above the hostile fire,
Your own artillery.
Shells score the air like wavy hair
from a forward battery.
As regimental cannon crack
While from positions further back,
in bitter sweet song overhead
crashing discordantly
Division's pounding joins the attack;
Mother like she belches shell;
Glorious it flies, and well,
As, with a hissing screaming squall,
A roaring furnace, giving all,
she sears a path for the infantry.

Aleksandr Tvardovskiy, from the poem "Vasily Tyorkin" 1943

St Barbara of the Artillery Corp,
Be at the bursting of the doors of doom,
And in the dark deliver us,
Amen.
